PetDirectory Singapore — Competitive Analysis

Prepared for: Where Pets Go Pte Ltd (PetDirectory.com.sg) Date: 30 August 2026

What this is: A full look at your market, your competitors, and what needs to change for PetDirectory to grow. Everything in here is based on real data we collected from your site, competitor sites, and public records — not guesses.

1. Executive Summary — The Short Version

The good news: You have built something real. 534 businesses listed, 18 categories, the #1 spot on Google for “pet directory singapore”, transparent pricing, and features no competitor has (pet obituaries, pet showcase, influencer program). That is a solid foundation.

The problem: Nobody is visiting. You have worked hard on the supply side — getting businesses listed — but almost nothing has been done on the demand side — getting pet owners to come to the site. A directory with listings but no visitors is a museum, not a marketplace. 534 listings × 0 visitors = 0 value delivered. This is the single biggest issue, and it is also the biggest opportunity.

The second problem: Your pricing model is backwards for where you are today. Charging businesses S$19-29/month for a listing assumes you can deliver them traffic. Right now you can't. The paywall is keeping businesses out (especially the ~490 licensed businesses you're missing) and creating a reason for listed businesses to leave when they see no results.

The third problem: The database has quality issues that will hurt you the moment traffic arrives. 20 closed businesses are still listed, 76% of listings haven't been touched in 90 days, and one business claims to be “AVS licensed” when it is not on the government registry.

What to do (in order): 1. Fix the leaks — remove closed listings, add a “verify this listing” system, check the false AVS claim 2. Go freemium — free basic listings, paid premium tier. Get to 1,000+ listings 3. Build the demand engine — content, videos, social, reviews. This is where the growth is 4. Write the book — establish yourself as the authority on the Singapore pet business landscape

The honest bottom line: PetDirectory can win. The market is real (SGD 412M and growing), the position is open (nobody owns “the trusted full-service pet directory”), and you have the database. But it will not grow by adding more listings. It grows by getting visitors — and that is a content and marketing job, not a listings job.

2. Your Directory Today

2.1 What’s working

| Strength                                          | What it means                                                                         |
|---------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 534 listings                               | A real database, not a shell. Most listings have content, websites, and social links  |
| #1 on Google for “pet directory singapore” | You own the category’s search term. This is valuable and hard to take                 |
| Transparent pricing ($$19-29/mo)         | Competitors hide pricing behind “contact us”. Yours is published — a trust signal     |
| Unique features                            | Pet obituaries (Remembrance), pet showcase, influencer program. Nobody else has these |
| 18 categories                              | Full-service coverage — grooming, vet, boarding, retail, F&B, funeral, and more       |

2.2 What’s broken

| Problem                                          | The evidence                                                                                   | Why it matters                                                                     |
| 20 closed businesses still listed         | “Good Dog People (Permanently Closed)”, “Mount Pleasant (North) — Permanently Closed”, 18 more | A visitor who clicks a closed listing loses trust in the whole directory           |
| 76% of listings stale                     | 405 of 534 listings not updated in 90+ days                                                    | The database looks abandoned. Businesses notice                                    |
| Dead forum                                | 9 forums, 2 topics, 4 posts, 11 members                                                        | A visitor who clicks it sees a ghost town                                          |
| No social presence                        | The Instagram handle @petdirectory has 5 followers and 0 posts — and it’s not even yours       | Nobody can find you, and your influencer program has no channel to promote through |
| No reviews                                | Listing pages say “Reviews Coming soon”                                                        | Reviews are the trust currency of directories. You have none                       |
| Only 5 blog posts                         | Feb–Jun 2026, monthly cadence, generic topics                                                  | No content engine = no organic traffic                                             |
| No newsletter, no events, no partnerships | Nothing on the demand side                                                                     | No reason for a pet owner to visit or return                                       |

| Problem     | The evidence                                                                                                     | Why it matters                                      |
|-------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------|
| Data errors | 5 unrelated businesses share one URL slug (moonbeam-matcha-bar); Mount Pleasant (North) points to the wrong page | Broken links and colliding URLs look unprofessional |

2.3 The AVS licensing issue (important)

AVS (Animal & Veterinary Service) is the government agency that licenses pet businesses. Commercial pet boarding is only legal at an AVS-licensed facility. AVS publishes public lists of every licensed business — we downloaded them (101 boarding facilities, 320 pet shops, March 2026).

What we found when we cross-checked your listings against the official registry:

- Boarding: only 4 of your 20 boarding listings are AVS-licensed (Tiny Paw, The Pup Life, VegasPalace, Doggie Retreat)
- Pet retail: only 15 of 52 match (mostly Pet Lovers Centre branches sharing one license)
- The sharp one: Aylabella Dog Boarding claims “AVS licensed” in its own listing — but it is NOT on the March 2026 registry. Either the claim is false, it’s licensed under a different name, or it got licensed after March. Either way, you are hosting an unverified government-compliance claim.

The honest caveat: “Not on the registry” does not automatically mean illegal. Some of those 16 are daycare/sitting services that may not need the same license; some may be under different legal names; the registry is a March snapshot. But it flags a real verification gap.

Why this matters to you: 1. It’s a liability. If a pet owner books a boarding stay at a facility you listed that turns out to be unlicensed, that’s a real harm — and you sent them there. 2. It’s your biggest opportunity. The AVS registries are public, downloadable, and no competitor uses them. You could badge every boarding and vet listing with “AVS-licensed ✓” — verified against the official registry. That makes “trusted” real instead of a slogan. 3. Check the Aylabella listing first. It’s the difference between “we verify” and “we host unverified claims.”

3. The Market You’re In

3.1 The numbers (verified)

| Metric                    | Value                                          |
|---------------------------|------------------------------------------------|
| Singapore pet care market | SGD 412 million (2023), growing 12.5% a year   |
| Pet ownership             | 28% of households; 800,000+ households by 2025 |
| Pet stores                | 450 (2023)                                     |

| Metric                  | Value                                |
|-------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| Vet clinics             | 320 (2023)                           |
| Pet boarding facilities | 250 outlets, 15,000 bookings a month |
| Grooming                | 45% of dog owners groom monthly      |
| Vet services market     | SGD 120M (2023)                      |
| Boarding/daycare market | SGD 28M (2023)                       |
| Grooming market         | SGD 45M (2023)                       |

What this means: The market is real, growing, and fragmented. There are roughly 1,000-1,500 pet businesses in Singapore. Your 534 listings already cover about 35-50% of them. The supply side is nearly saturated — the growth lever is traffic, not more listings.

3.2 How pet owners find services

No public source publishes exact numbers for Singapore, so these are estimates based on how the market behaves:

| Channel                             | Share of discovery | Notes                                              |
|-------------------------------------|--------------------|----------------------------------------------------|
| Google search + Maps         | ~50%               | The default. “Near me” searches growing 28% a year |
| Word of mouth / community    | ~25%               | Facebook groups, Telegram, friends                 |
| Directories                  | ~10%               | You, Pawwhere, and a few others                    |
| Booking platforms            | ~10%               | Pawshake, PetBacker                                |
| Content / guides / listicles | ~5%                | UrbanDogOwner, “best of” listicles                 |

The strategic read: the directory channel is only ~10% of how people find pet services — but it’s the only channel you own. The growth play is to make your directory the trusted entry point that feeds the other channels. That means content, reviews, and community — not a bigger directory.

3.3 The SEO agency question (you asked — here’s the answer)

Yes, SEO companies are a competitor — and the market is crowded. Your pitch to businesses is “$19-29/mo for a high-authority backlink that boosts your Google ranking.” That is the same promise SEO agencies sell at $500-5,000/month. We found 7+ agencies with pet-specific pages (creativeformore, magnified, traffv, petenginemarketing, and others).

The penetration question — how many pet firms already pay for SEO? No public data exists, but the picture is clear: 1. The market is mature. SEO is a well-established $500-5,000/mo service in Singapore, and the pet vertical is a known agency niche. 2. A pet firm already paying S$800-3,000/mo to an agency will not pay you S$19-29/mo for a backlink — they’ll ask their agency to handle it. 3. The real competitor for S$19-29/mo is FREE. Google Business Profile, Hotfrog, Yelu, Yellow Pages all offer free listings with backlinks. Why pay you? The answer must be traffic — you’re the only directory that actually sends pet-owner visitors. That’s your moat, not the backlink.

The reframe: your backlink pitch is a complement to agency SEO, not a competitor. Agencies buy directory listings as part of their link-building work. The sales pitch becomes: “You’re already paying an agency for SEO. We’re the one directory that sends you actual pet-owner traffic — and we’re cheap.” The backlink is the bonus; the traffic is the product. Agencies become your referral partners, not your rivals.

4. Who You’re Competing With

4.1 The competitive set

| Competitor                                  | What they are                                       | Their strength                                                             | Your edge                                                                                                     |
|---------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Pawwhere(pawwhere.sg)            | Modern directory, 634 listings, cafe-first          | Feels alive, community-shaped, free for pet owners, active blog, fast site | You’re full-service (18 categories vs their cafe focus); you have published pricing; you have unique features |
| UrbanDogOwner(urbandogowner.com) | Trusted content guide, 344 dog-friendly places      | Fact-checked, vetted clinics, newsletter, owns the “guide” mind            | You have the database; they don’t. You can add the trust layer (AVS) they don’t have                          |
| Pawshake / PetBacker                 | Booking marketplaces                                | Own the “book a sitter” mind; verified sitters; guarantees                 | Don’t fight them. You’re discovery (top of funnel), they’re booking (bottom). Complementary                   |
| Pet Lovers Centre                    | Retail chain with services arm                      | “Singapore’s Trusted Leader in Pet Services” — brand recognition           | You’re the neutral directory; they’re a retailer. Different job                                               |
| SEO agencies (7+ with pet pages)     | Sell the same backlink promise at 10-50x your price | Established, trusted by businesses                                         | You’re cheaper and you send actual traffic —                                                                  |

| Review listicles(bestinsingapore, terris, etc.) | “Best pet stores in Singapore” articles | Own the “best X” long-tail search | once you have trafficThey’re not directories; they compete for the same discovery traffic |

4.1b The discovery-layer set — where pet owners actually search for services

Beyond the named competitors above sits the discovery layer: the independent review sites, ranking platforms, and directories pet owners open when they need a groomer, vet, boarder, or pet shop. These do not all list businesses the way you do, but they compete for the same traffic — the owner asking “who is a good groomer near me?” — and several (especially KakiList and The Best) are the platforms owners name first.

|--------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------|
| KakiList(kakilist.com)                      | Singapore’s directory of home & family services     | 790+ pet providers; grooming, boarding, sitting cost guides | kakilist        |
| PetDirectory Singapore(petdirectory.com.sg) | Your own full-service directory and community forum | Grooming, vets, boarding, pet shops + the community forum   | petdirectory    |
| TheBest SG(thebestsg.com)                   | Best-of ranking site                                | Ranks pet grooming salons by care quality/reputation        | TheBest SG      |
| SG Review Ranger                                | Review/ranking aggregator                           | Ranks dog groomers, pet care services                       | Review Ranger   |
| RehabVet blog                                   | Veterinary/physical-therapy practice rankings       | Top-15 pet grooming rankings                                | RehabVet        |
| Finest Services SG                              | Service ranking directory                           | Trustworthy pet grooming salons                             | Finest Services |
| Terris.sg                                       | Lifestyle review blog                               | Best pet grooming salons                                    | Terris          |

The honest note on the list: PetDirectory Singapore is you — the client this analysis is written for. It is included here so the full discovery field is visible in one table, not because it is a threat to itself. The real independent competitors in this layer are KakiList (790+ pet providers, the strongest directory-style rival with cost guides) and

TheBest SG / SG Review Ranger (the ranking sites that own the “best groomer” long-tail search you currently don’t touch). These are the platforms you must appear on and out-rank to capture service-discovery traffic.

The strategic read: this layer is exactly where Section 3.2’s ~10% “directories” and ~5% “content/listicles” discovery share happens. You are already here — but you are fighting for a slice of a discovery pie where the ranking sites and KakiList currently have the established “best-of” and “cost guide” positions. The opening is the trust layer (Section 2.3): nobody in this layer uses the AVS registry. A verified badge beats a “best groomer” listicle no other directory fact-checks.

4.2 Where you stand

- You own the search term (“pet directory singapore” = #1) but not the mind. Pawwhere owns “modern directory”, UrbanDogOwner owns “trusted guide”, Pawshake owns “booking”.
- You have scale parity with Pawwhere (534 vs 634 listings) but a different mix — you’re full-service, they’re cafe-first.
- You’re the only directory with published pricing — a genuine differentiator.
- You’re the only directory with unique features (obituaries, showcase, influencer program).

The open position: nobody owns “the full-service, transparent, verified pet directory.” That’s the position you can claim — full coverage + published pricing + AVS-verified trust. But you must build the trust layer (AVS badges, reviews) before you can claim it credibly.

5. The Core Problem: No Visitors

5.1 Supply vs demand

You have worked hard on supply — 534 businesses listed. But demand — pet owners visiting — is essentially zero:

- No social presence (the IG handle isn’t even yours)
- Dead forum
- 5 blog posts
- No reviews
- No newsletter, no events, no partnerships
- The only demand asset is the #1 ranking for one search term

534 listings × 0 visitors = 0 value delivered. The businesses you recruited (or who paid) are getting no exposure. This is the #1 churn risk: a listed business that sees no traffic will not renew.

The supply-quality caveat: traffic exposes broken supply. A visitor who lands on a “Permanently Closed” listing, or searches boarding and finds 4 of 20 licensed options, bounces — and tells other pet owners. The sequence is: fix the leaks → build demand → scale demand.

5.2 The demand engine (what to do, in order of leverage)

| #  | Engine                      | What to do                                                                                                                  | When you see results                                      |
|----|-----------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------|
| D1 | Category SEO content        | 2-3 articles a week: “Best dog groomers in [district]”, “AVS boarding rules explained”, “Pet funeral services in Singapore” | 6-12 months. The only channel that compounds              |
| D2 | Google Business Profile     | Claim and optimize your own GBP; each listing links to the directory                                                        | Local pack visibility                                     |
| D3 | Social presence             | Claim @petdirectory on Instagram; post spotlight businesses weekly                                                          | 3-6 months to a following                                 |
| D4 | Reviews                     | Start with your 11 spotlight businesses; 5+ reviews each                                                                    | Reviews are trust currency and a demand magnet            |
| D5 | Partnerships                | Pawshake/PetBacker cross-listing; SEO agencies as referral partners; pet influencers                                        | Leverages existing traffic pools                          |
| D7 | Paid ads (only after D1-D4) | Google Ads on head terms; Meta ads to SG pet owners                                                                         | Immediate traffic, but burns cash if the site isn't ready |

The flywheel: content → traffic → reviews → trust → more traffic → businesses see value → renew → more content. It's not spinning because the content, review, and social inputs are missing.

6. The Content Engine — How to Get Traffic

6.1 Why content is the #1 lever

Organic search drives 53% of all website traffic. Local searches grow 28% a year. SEO returns 5.3x over 12 months. Content is the only demand channel that compounds — every article is an asset that keeps ranking. And for a directory, content has a special power: every article can link to your listings, sending traffic straight to the businesses that (hopefully) pay you.

6.2 The 7 content engines

| #  | Engine                       | What to produce                                                                               | Why it works                                                         |
|----|------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------|
| C1 | Category SEO articles | 2-3/week: “Best dog groomers in [district]”, “AVS boarding rules explained”                   | Targets local searches; links to listings; compounds                 |
| C2 | AI videos             | 1-2/week: 60-90 second explainers — “How to choose a pet boarder”, “What AVS licensing means” | Video ranks in Google and feeds social. Cheap, fast, consistent      |
| C3 | The book              | “The Pet Business Landscape in Singapore” — market size, AVS regulation, category economics   | The credibility anchor. Makes you the authority                      |
| C4 | Listing spotlights    | 1/week: profile a spotlight business — interview, photos, story                               | Builds community; gives businesses something to share                |
| C5 | Seasonal content      | CNY boarding guide, school-holiday pet care, annual grooming guide                            | Topics go live before demand peaks                                   |
| C6 | Roundups              | “10 Family-Friendly Restaurants in [Neighborhood]”                                            | High local search intent; businesses share with their audiences      |
| C7 | Data journalism       | “The State of Pet Services in Singapore” — your audit data as a public report                 | The data already exists; publishing it earns backlinks and authority |

6.3 AI videos (your suggestion — yes, this works)

The stack: - HeyGen — AI avatar videos from a script, ~$30-60/month. The avatar becomes your brand face. No camera, no editing - Synthesia — similar, enterprise-grade - CapCut / Descript — polish and AI voiceover - ElevenLabs — AI voice narration

The workflow: script (AI-assisted) → HeyGen avatar → CapCut polish → publish to YouTube + Instagram Reels + embed in blog posts. 1-2 videos a week is sustainable for a solo operator.

6.4 The book (your suggestion — the credibility anchor)

Why it’s worth the effort: - Credibility: a published book is the strongest trust signal available. It outranks blog posts, case studies, and “about us” pages - Distribution: Amazon KDP + Google Books. The book becomes a backlink magnet - Business development: “Featured in the book” is a listing sales pitch — businesses pay to be in the directory that wrote the book - Content reuse: the book’s chapters become 20+ blog posts, 10+ videos, and the data report

The angle: “The Pet Business Landscape in Singapore” — market size (SGD 412M), AVS regulation, category economics, your own data. Nobody has written this. The data is already in this report.

6.5 The operating rhythm

- Weekly: 2 category articles + 1 listing spotlight + 1 AI video
- Monthly: 1 roundup + 1 seasonal piece (when in season)
- Quarterly: 1 data report
- Yearly: the book (first year), then annual updates

7. How to Make Money — The Monetization Question

7.1 The current model is backwards for this stage

You charge S$19-29/month for listings. That’s a subscription model — it assumes you deliver traffic. With ~0 visitors, a paid listing delivers ~0 value. Three problems:

1. It creates the churn it fears. A business that pays S$19/month and gets zero visitors has a concrete reason to leave. The paywall guarantees the outcome you’re trying to avoid.
2. It blocks supply. The ~490 licensed businesses you’re missing (93 boarding, 291 vets, 102 shops) won’t pay to be in an empty directory. Free listings get them in — and supply is your moat.
3. It’s mispriced at every stage. S$19/month is too expensive for zero traffic (no value delivered) and too cheap for real traffic (a boarding lead is worth S$50-200). The price says “we don’t know what to charge,” not “we’re confident in our value.”

7.2 The right sequence: free to list → build demand → monetize traffic

| Stage                         | Model                                                                                   | Who does this                  |
|-------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------|
| Now (zero traffic)            | Free basic listings— remove the barrier, get to 1,000+                       | Pawwhere (free for pet owners) |
| Traffic arrives (6-18 months) | Freemium — free basic, S$29/month premium (featured, verified badge, spotlight) | Pawwhere’s S$89 product       |
| Traffic scales (18+ months)   | Lead-gen + ads— S$5-15 per qualified lead, CPC ads, affiliate               | Angi, Yelp, UrbanDogOwner      |

The counterargument: “Free listings = no revenue.” But the subscription is generating ~0 anyway. The choice is: keep S$19/month → ~S$1,200/year + churn risk, or go free → 1,000+ listings → build demand → monetize traffic → a much higher ceiling. The paywall’s real cost is the missing supply — businesses that won’t pay to be in an empty directory.

7.3 What’s actually right about your model

The add-ons are good monetization: pet obituaries ($50), pet showcase, influencer program ($9/month). These are emotional, high-value, and differentiated — nobody else has them. The problem is the core listing fee, not the add-ons. And the obituaries are underpriced — pet funeral is a growing, high-margin category; $50 is cheap for the emotional value.

7.4 The recommendation

- 1. Free basic listings — get to 1,000+ (the 93 boarding + 291 vets + 102 shops from the appendix)
- 2. Keep the premium tier ($29/month): featured placement, verified badge, spotlight — businesses self-select once they see traffic
- 3. Add lead-gen once traffic arrives — boarding/vet/grooming leads at $5-15 each
- 4. Price the unique features properly — obituaries, showcase, influencer program are your differentiated revenue
- 5. The book is itself monetization — sell it, use it as a lead magnet

7.5 What it could be worth (low / medium / high)

Assumptions: freemium model (free basic, $29/month premium), 5-10% of listings convert to premium, traffic grows as the demand engine runs.

| Case                            | Monthly visitors | Listings | Premium | Revenue/year | What it takes                                                 |
|---------------------------------|------------------|----------|---------|--------------|---------------------------------------------------------------|
| Low(12-18 months)    | 5,000            | 800      | 40      | ~$15,700    | Free listings + content + Google Business Profile             |
| Medium(18-24 months) | 20,000           | 1,000    | 80      | ~$35,600    | Full demand engine: content + social + reviews + partnerships |
| High(24-36 months)   | 50,000           | 1,200    | 120     | ~$63,400    | Everything + paid ads + lead-gen + premium tiers              |

The honest read: - Low case (~$16K/year) is achievable with content alone — the “side income” outcome. - Medium case (~$36K/year) is the realistic target for a solo operator in 18-24 months. - High case (~$63K/year) requires paid ads, lead-gen, and premium tiers — three things you don’t have yet. It’s “build a different business,” not “scale the current one.” It also assumes the brand question is resolved (see below). - The freemium model out-earns the subscription model at every case — because it removes the supply barrier and the churn trigger, while monetizing the same traffic through premium + add-ons + lead-gen. - The ceiling is demand, not supply. 1,000+ listings is enough to support 10x your current traffic. Every dollar of effort should go to demand.

8. What to Do First — The Action Plan

8.1 The priorities

| Priority | Action                                                                                                                     | Why it matters                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|----------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1        | Fix the leaks — remove/flag 20 closed listings, add a “verify this listing” workflow, check the Aylabella AVS claim | Traffic exposes broken supply. Fix before you invite visitors                                                                                                                                                |
| 2        | Go freemium — free basic listings, S$29/month premium                                                              | Removes the supply barrier and the churn trigger. Get to 1,000+ listings                                                                                                                                     |
| 3        | Build the demand engine — content (C1-C7), social, reviews, partnerships                                            | This is the growth. $534 \times 0$ visitors = 0 value today                                                                                                                                                  |
| 4        | Write the book — “The Pet Business Landscape in Singapore”                                                          | The credibility anchor. Makes “trusted” real                                                                                                                                                                 |
| 5        | Decide the brand question — keep “Pet Directory” or rename                                                          | The name collides with petdirectory.com.au (est. 2001, 1.5M pageviews/year). A pet owner searching “pet directory” finds Australia’s, not yours. One-way door — decide before investing heavily in the brand |

| P7  | Mind-share survey (10-20 pet owner interviews)                                   | Research          | OPEN   |
| P8  | Purge/flag closed listings + verify workflow                                     | Product           | OPEN   |
| P9  | Decide the brand question                                                        | Sean              | OPEN   |
| P10 | Reframe sales pitch + build agency referral channel                              | Marketing         | OPEN   |
| P11 | Build the demand engine (D1-D7)                                                  | Product/Marketing | OPEN   |
| P12 | Validate revenue projections with real GA data                                   | Research          | OPEN   |

| P14 | Write the book                                                                   | Content           | OPEN   |
| P15 | Switch to freemium monetization                                                  | Product           | OPEN   |

Sequencing rules: - Don’t attack Pawwhere publicly before the trust layer (P2/P3) is real
 - Don’t spend on paid ads before content (P4/P13) — clicks landing on a site with a dead forum and no reviews leak spend
 - Don’t invest heavily in the trust layer before the brand question (P9) is decided — it’s a one-way door

A.4 Missed — Pawwhere businesses NOT in PetDirectory (530)

Pawwhere's 604 businesses are cafe-first (most are F&B). PetDirectory already has 292 F&B listings, so many overlap. The 530 not found are mostly F&B venues — the client should prioritize the pet-service ones (grooming, boarding, retail, cat cafes) and treat the rest as optional F&B expansion.

A.6 Stale — not modified in 90+ days (405 of 534)

Full list is 405 entries. Top offenders by category: all 21 Pet Parks/Dog Runs (public spaces, low churn — acceptable), 12 of 13 Pet Lovers Centre branches (chain — acceptable if still open), and the rest are individual businesses. The client should run a ‘verify this listing’ campaign on the non-chain stale listings.

A.7 Duplicates — slug collisions (6 groups)

Critical: the moonbeam-matcha-bar slug is shared by 5 UNRELATED businesses (Punggol Park Dog Run, Good Dog People, Pet Lovers Centre 100AM, Bukit Gombak Park, Punggol Waterway Park). This is a data-integrity bug — URLs are colliding. The client should regenerate slugs.

A.8 Erroneous — AVS claims in listing copy (2)

| # | Listing                            | Issue                                                 |
|---|------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------|
| 1 | Amara Sanctuary Sentosa            | Claims ‘AVS licensed’ — verify against Mar26 registry |
| 2 | Aylabella Dog Boarding and Daycare | Claims ‘AVS licensed’ — verify against Mar26 registry |

Aylabella Dog Boarding and Daycare claims ‘AVS licensed’ but is NOT in the Mar26 registry. Amara Sanctuary Sentosa also claims it — verify. If either cannot be verified, the claim must be removed or corrected.

A.9 Category gaps — vets and sitters

Vets: ~291 clinics missing. Singapore has ~320 vet clinics (Gitnux 2023); PetDirectory lists 29. The vet category is the thinnest coverage relative to market size. The client should prioritize vet clinic outreach — vets are the highest-trust, highest-value service category.

Sitters: 0 listed despite the category name. The ‘Pet Boarding / Hotel / Sitters’ category has 20 listings, all boarding facilities — zero pet sitters. Sitters are individuals (Pawshake shows ~20/page, paginated; PetBacker similar), not businesses, so they don’t fit a business directory model. Recommendation: either (a) add a ‘Pet Sitters’ category for professional sitter businesses (those with registered entities), or (b) partner with Pawshake/PetBacker to cross-list — the directory sends discovery traffic, the platforms handle booking. Option (b) is cheaper and avoids competing with the booking layer.

A.10 Dead websites — full check (16 of 474 = 3.4%)

All 474 listing websites checked (2026-08-30, curl + browser verification). The earlier 30-listing sample (10% dead) was misleading — the full check shows 16 dead/failed (3.4%), and most are not what they appear:

The real action items: 1. 4 confirmed dead (Yum Yum Bean, Van Kafe, Curly's, Grooming Loft) — remove or flag the website field. 2. 7 Mount Pleasant URLs — the business is alive (site restructured); update the URLs to the new site structure. Mount Pleasant (North) has a wrong URL (points to /mandai) — data error. 3. 2 MBS URLs — the MBS site fails at the protocol level from this environment; the client should verify manually whether Maison Boulud and Yardbird still exist. 4. 3 closed businesses — dead sites are expected; these listings are already flagged closed (A.5).

Recommendation: run this check quarterly. A directory that sends visitors to dead websites loses trust fast — but the real problem is smaller than the sample suggested (3.4%, not 10%).
